RECAPTURE ZONNEBEKE

Advance Beyond Polygon Woods in Face of Terrible Fire—Huns Sac-

British front in France and Belgium (delayed). Sept. 27.—One more of the British fighting machine has pushed its way through the German trenches along the Ypres battle front with great success. The offensive began in the gray dawn of a misty morning and by noon accomplished a virtual capture of the Zonnebeke village and this afternoon the men of Australia, England and Scotland were holding positions which represented a gain of from 1,000 to 1,300 yards over a large part of the sector involved.Capture of Ridge.
They had secured the whole of the Tower Hamlet ridge which the Germans had fought so vigorously to retain; they were clear of the famous Polygon woods on the eastern slope and had been able to cover the six miles of the Ypres-Roulers railroad. They were holding many German strongholds in the valley of the Hanebeek river. Hard fighting still continued, especially south of the Polygon woods, where the Germans were trying to determine to regain the ground lost and further counter-attacks were not unexpected.Carry Out Plans.
The advance on the extreme right was not considerable, but was in accord with the plan to drive the Germans from Tower Hamlet ridge. The battle for this position really began in the morning when the Germans, in an endeavor to push back the British, launched a series of fierce counter-attacks on both sides of the Ypres-Menin highway.Germans Repulsed.
Paris, Sept. 27.—Two German attacks along the Chemin-Des-Dames were repulsed by the French last night, the war office announced. The Germans sustained heavy losses.

The fighting here yesterday was continuous and sanguinary for the Germans kept throwing infantry and machine guns against the British positions. The defenders were forced to give way slightly, but with undaunted courage hurled themselves on the enemy with such ferocity that they were able to reestablish themselves before the hour for the new advance arrived. A lot of British troops in this sector began the new push this morning under fatigue of many hours of fighting against a determined foe, but they did their work today, and did it well. The fighting about Tower Hamlet was very severe, and the Germans were able to get heavy machine guns trained on the British from positions to the south.

Establish New Positions.
Along the Menin road, the English made the slight advance called for under a withering machine gun fire. The line of advance swung out much further into enemy territory in order to include the Polygon wood and other important positions. The Australian troops who negotiated most of the territory between the Ypres-Menin road, appear to have had comparatively little trouble in getting through to the exception of a narrow trench just south of Polygon wood, where the Germans held on tenaciously for a time. They had fought their way through more or less in the usual manner, and encountered a great number of block houses which turned a vicious machine gun and rifle fire against them. Among the troops opposing them were Poles. The men posted a good start, getting over the top, and swept through the eastern portion of Polygon wood. German machine guns on the eastern slope made a comparatively short time, the Australians were surging across the race course on the level of the road.Retake Zonnebeke.
It was a proud day for those English troops who forced their way into the western end of Zonnebeke village. Not since the bitter period of April, 1915, when the British were compelled to withdraw from this place, had an allied soldier entered it. The wound of this defeat was healed largely to day. In the sector north of Zonnebeke the offensive proceeded systematically until the final line was reached.

The Germans were active throughout last night and put down a heavy barrage fire before this morning's attack, but it did little damage.

Maintain Line in France and Belgium.
Sept. 27.—The British are maintaining their new line strongly. The main battle today was near Samerous, south of the eastern extremity of Polygon wood, where the Australians are pressing the Germans hard. The situation as a whole is virtually unchanged.Describes Way the

"Eat Up Training"

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

American Training Camps in France, Sept. 27.—The Paris correspondent of the Associated Press writes the following account of his recent visit to the training camp of the American expeditionary force:

I asked an English drill sergeant who had just given a bunch of sixteen subalterns a breathing spell after some particularly strenuous exercise, what he thought of his charges. "What do I think of these 'ere young gentlemen here? Why, sir, we have just had them in six days and look at 'em. They are training in beautiful. The best thing about them is that they are as clean as mustard. We can't give them too much, they eat it all up. At it eight hours a day and ask for more and you can see for yourself, sir, how we made them hustle. Just let them see, sir, how we do it in our little army."

I was on a visit to one of several camps scattered in France where the American army is in training. After lunch with the division commander, a simple but ample meal, with a water washdown, as I am told it is in every mess, he invited me to come with him to see how your English sergeant majors take my aid over there and the rest of the school of officers and makes them run. "Come see me sweat. The drill we get has baseball left at the post as an exercise but it is great stuff."

We stood later on a smiling hillside where the sergeant pointed out where there had been constructed in a dip three short lines of trenches ending at a rise some 100 yards off. Those points you see in the sun on the opposite slope, he said, are tin cans on sticks. You will know their use in a minute or two.

"Ready gentlemen," said the drill sergeant, "prepare for trenching. You can't practice by hand sections. You are to take these three lines of trenches, lay out every boche in the lot and then get to cover and fire six rounds at them."

The sergeant, however, every bullet, a boche. Now then, ready. Over the top and give 'em 'ell right in the stomach. Fritz likes 'is victuals, but not that sort. Get at 'em."

What are technically known as Battalion Problems, are just now being solved by the more advanced units of American troops training here for eventual work in the trenches.

After the battalion problems will come the regimental problems, then brigade problems, and lastly division problems, for in modern war, the division is the largest fighting unit which remains intact within an army organization. The corps change from organization to time both in the number and the identity of their division, but the divisions retain their integrity throughout. Within a division, the battalion is a really important fighting unit and within a battalion problems are the basis for all that follow.

GERMAN TO FIGHT FOR CITIZENSHIP

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Milwaukee, Sept. 27.—Hans Kamm of Oak Creek does not take lightly the attempt of the government to deprive him of the citizenship granted by Circuit Judge Burnett since this country declared war with Germany. He has indicated his intention of fighting the case by answering the complaint and asking for its dismissal.

This is one of a number of suits brought in the United States district court by District Attorney Sawyer, for the cancellation of certificates given since the break with Germany, the contention being that such could not legally be done. One of a law alien enemy.

Kamm contends that the circuit court and the United States district court are courts of coordinate jurisdiction, either being authorized to determine all issue in the naturalization of aliens.

Amsterdam, Sept. 27.—A full page advertisement in Berlin newspaper signed by the chief magistrate of greater Berlin, and appealing for subscriptions to the war loan, says among other things:

HAIG GIVES LLOYD GEORGE A FIRST HAND ACCOUNT OF BIG BRITISH DRIVE

General Sir Haig is shown telling Lloyd George of the progress of the war, and from the expression on his face and his gesture it can be gained that he is speaking most optimistically. Marshal Joffre is ready to affirm any of the British general's assertions, for Joffre is perhaps better acquainted than any of the French and British officers with the strategic moves planned and being carried out at the present moment.

Milwaukee, Sept. 27.—Nicholas Voss, who offered armed resistance to state and federal authorities near Manitowoc recently when approached for arrest, for failure to register, will today be asked to register. A sentence of sixty days imposed this morning by Judge Geiger, United States district court, and on his own volition "I would rather be called any name other than a slacker," he said with great earnestness, "and just to show that I regret the whole unfortunate affair which began with an engaging honest misunderstanding, I shall try to re-enter the navy. I never have nor ever will be a slacker."

Attorney W. H. Bennett referred to Voss' record in the navy, where in the four years he saved $1,027 from his meagre pay, which was an unusually good record. For obedience and sobriety his markings were of the highest. "This was the first time he ever had been in trouble."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Amsterdam, Sept. 27.—According to Vienna advices, the Austrian finance minister has presented the 1917-18 budget to the lower house of parliament, showing an estimated expenditure of 22,169,000,000 kronen, and an estimated revenue of 3,930,000,000 kronen. In order to meet the deficit, the government has asked parliament to raise credit for 18,000,000,000 kronen.

The total war expenditure of Austria-Hungary for the first three years of war was 27,553,000,000 kronen. Expenses for the fourth year are estimated at 12,000,000,000 kronen.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Sept. 27.—Conferees on the war tax bill today were perfecting a virtually complete agreement on the excess profit taxation question. A compromise between the House graduated scale and the Senate flat rate with a minimum exemption of about seven per cent on corporate invested capital is the basis of the agreement. The House had demanded an eight per cent exemption.

The conference reports on the bill is expected to be laid before the Senate and House not later than Saturday although it will probably not be acted on until next week.

Objection by Representative Cooper of Wisconsin to giving the coastwise shipping bill privileged status today, made the date of its consideration uncertain. It proposes to open the American coastwise trade to foreign ships under certain restrictions.

The House today adjourned after a brief session in honor of the memory of the late Representative Ebenezer J. Hill of Connecticut.

Slacker's Measure.

[By International News.]

Washington, Sept. 27.—The finishing touches will be put on the so-called "alien slacker" bill by the House today. Both committees are expected to order the bill reported to the House today. Material changes from the form in which the bill passed the Senate may be recommended in the form of amendments if Representative Burnett, of Alabama, succeeds in his fight.

Representative Burnett, who is chairman of the immigration committee, is seeking to amend the bill to bar from this country citizens of other nations now warring against Germany who are of draft age under the laws of their countries. He would make subject to draft into the American army enemies between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-one years, regardless of whether they can become citizens under the present naturalization laws, the state department is opposed to some of Burnett's views.

Secretary Lansing has informed the Senate that the committee will accomplish as at present in a fair way of being realized through diplomatic negotiations. It is understood that Japan and China have raised objections because the citizens cannot become American citizens.

Representative Burnett will make a fight for his proposed amendments on the floor of the House if he fails to get the backing of either of the committees who have been considering the bill. Unless the rules are suspended, the House cannot take up the bill until tomorrow.

GARY RAILROAD MEN ARE OUT ON STRIKE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Gary, Ind., Sept. 27.—Between seven and eight hundred men employed in the west switching yards of the Elkhart, Joliet and Eastern railroad did not report for work this morning. This road controls incoming and outgoing freight of the big United States Steel Corporation plant here.

Operations at the mills of Gary, Ind., and South Chicago, largely on war contracts, were curtailed today by an unauthorized strike of approximately 800 switchmen, employed by the Elkhart, Joliet and Eastern railroad, for almost one hundred per cent increase in wages.

According to a statement of F. N. Rodgers, vice-president of the road, it is a belt line of great importance in the terminal facilities of Chicago and environs, the men met last night and decided to strike.

Railroad officials say they have not had time to learn whether German propaganda had anything to do with the sudden revolt.

Rome, Sept. 27.—One steamship of more than 1,500 tons and six sailing ships of less than one hundred tons each were sunk last week by mines or submarines, according to the weekly report from the Italian admiralty. The steamer was sunk outside the territorial waters. One steamship and one sailing vessel were damaged but were able to reach port.

British Losses Fall.
London, Sept. 26.—England is greatly encouraged today over the submarine situation. The latest report of the admiralty on British shipping losses shows that fewer vessels were sent down last week than in any other week since the ruthless U-boat war began last February.

Of the British ships lost last week thirteen were over 1,000 tons in size and two were under 1,000. Two small fishing boats also were destroyed.

French Losses.
Paris, Sept. 26.—(Delayed).—The French admiralty tonight announced the following losses by submarines or mines for the week ending Sept. 23: "Over 1,600 tons, seven," or previously, "Under 1,600 tons, five," two previously. Three steamers were attacked unsuccessfully. No fishing vessels were lost.U. S. BANKERS READY
TO AID GOVERNMENT
WHEREVER POSSIBLE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 27.—Assurance that the American Bankers' Association stands ready to give the government all the assistance and cooperation in the solution of future bond issues was given by Peter W. Goebel of Kansas City, Kas., president of the association. In an address before the annual convention of that organization, he said:

"All the banks of the country have extraordinary duties. They have these trying times. They have to assist the government in the sale and distribution of war loan bonds. This duty is not only a financial duty, but it is a patriotic duty. To him the people turn when the government calls and patriotism dictates. The financial machinery is under his control. So when the secretary of the treasury called on the banks to assist in floating the two billion liberty loan, the banks, with their entire energies to the task and greatly aided in the achievement of the splendid success of that campaign."

The American Bankers' Association stands ready to give the government similar assistance in the flotation of future bond issues. In organization should not again undertake to finance such activities and it will probably not be necessary. The federal reserve banks, as the government agencies for the sale of war bonds, have had experience and ample time in which to perfect organizations for this purpose. The association will cooperate with them in every way possible. There are undoubtedly some things the association can do better than any other organization, and it remains only to have these things assigned to it as its duty in aiding to raise funds to carry on the war.

The loan operations of the government are in proportion to its vast military operations. We have under tribute not only to pay our own bills, but to advance funds to our allies. It is idle to give figures. They are incomprehensible. So far the funds advanced have been enormous. The country soon the payment of the troops will call for large expenditures abroad. The food and munitions for our armies will not be paid for by others. We must stop skimming off the cream and use all the milk.

The only way the people can produce the funds with which to supply the government is by the wise and wasteless use of our resources. It applies as well to the employer of labor as to the wage-earner. It demands the effective use of machinery, of soil, of the forces of the productive processes as well as in consumption. Thrift means greater production as well as wasteless consumption so we may save and become more competent."

THOUGHTS TO THINK ABOUT

When we cheerfully give of our talents and time we get manifold blessings from all mankind.

Extravagance tries to empty the pockets, but fashions often times changed them inside out and leaves no change at all.

Expecting nothing good and finding what he looks for in abundance is the harvest of the pessimist. Opportunity, the jolly road follow, meets the optimistic bad way but whole heartedly.

The man who works, not the fool who shirks, is the one who gets ahead; the back seat row is the kind, you know, who are always considered dead.

MILK PRODUCERS SET HIGHER MILK PRICES

PRICE OF $3.42 PER 100 FOR OCTOBER MEANS 12 OR 13 CENT MILK FOR THE CONSUMER

TO INCREASE HERDS

Local Association Draws Plans for Aiding Farmer in Boosting Number of Cows in County.

War has hit the milk price with a vengeance. On October first it will go to either twelve or thirteen cents a quart, and there are but slim chances that it will drop for some months. The price the producer will receive was reported last evening at a meeting of the local Milk Producers' Association at the city hall, as having been determined at $3.42 a hundred.

This was the price reached by taking an average of all the quotations by the representative of local dairymen at the meeting of the Chicago association. The Janesville association voted, through its delegate, Hugh C. Hemmingsway, for a price of 3.41c. Other prices ranged as low as three dollars and one man advocated $4.12. He denounced it as being against the farmer but was hissed to his seat by the rest of the association.

Besides learning of the new milk price, the association took steps to aid the farmer in increasing the number of cows in the county, passed resolutions endorsing the new Liberty Loan, and urged all farmers to save heifer calves for rearing into milk cows, rather than to sell them for veal.

The meeting though attended by but very few of the members in the county, was an exceptionally active one. Prices were approximately the same as of the week, and a carefully prepared chart was presented showing graphically the exact cost of producing one hundred pounds of milk. By averaging the results of a large number of dairymen, the cost of feed and labor was determined. The cost of feed and labor for milking amounted to $2.25 a hundred. This figure does not take into account cost of cow's services, investment, superintendent's wages, to the farmer or profits. And if the farmer has to have his milk hauled, there will be an additional cost of fifty cents, leaving little margin of profit, even with a price set by the association at $3.42.

One feature of the new price that is hopeful from the point of view of the farmer is the fact that the price is determined only for the month of October. Hereafter it has been customary to set the price for six months in advance. For the last six months, the price has averaged 3.41c, with $2.40 standing out as the highest price during last April and $2.30 as the September figure.

Food Administrator Herbert C. Hoover recently called a meeting of the Chicago association, and asked them to set the price for only one month in advance. This they agreed to do, though it leaves the price in rather indeterminate position insofar as the purchase of feeds is concerned. Before the month is out, Mr. Hoover will conduct investigations concerning a fair price for milk, its cost of production, and will if possible, lower the price of feeds.

In the estimation of the local producers, however, but little can be done to lower milk prices. The long the farmer has been realizing for too small a margin on his milk, and now a reduction in feed prices means simply that the farmer takes the money out of one pocket and puts it in the other, according to George Woodruff, secretary of the local association.

The great need of the country so far as the milk situation is concerned, is for more cows. An increase of twenty-five per cent is really necessary and one of forty per cent would be a decided advantage. Since the association came into existence a little over a year ago the number of cows has been increased tremendously; one farmer west of the city being cited as an example who has increased his herd from milking one cow and who now delivers the product of fifty animals to the local milk concerns.

That this need may be met in an adequate manner, the association last night ordered the chairman to name a committee of five men who will make a study of the cattle market with a view to getting the best prices and possible arrangements for both their purchase and the creation of a demand for them and will if possible arrange with the bankers of the county to finance the transactions.

"This is one of the most progressive steps the milk producers have made and insures the increasing importance with the bankers of the county," said a dairyman who was present. "A year ago last June when local dairymen who were promoting the plans for the formation of an association in this county made a survey of the region, they found between five and six thousand cows within a radius of six miles of the city. Since that time, there has been an increase of possibly a thousand and cows, and another thousand is needed before the demand can be adequately met. Though there has been much agitation for more cows, the appointment of this committee will mark the first definite action taken by the producers to increase the herds of the county."

Another phase of the milk situation which was emphasized at last night's meeting was the conserving of the calves and their rearing into milk producing cows. The sale of heifer calves as veal has been steadily continuing since the time when every thing possible must be done to increase the production of maximum supplies; and with this in mind, the association voted to encourage the raising of calves and to have a committee to place vacated by the entrance of O. G. Goch who entered the national service. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Goch for his work with the association.

The enrollment of the association may be increased to include every milk producer in the county, a committee was named to co-operate with the local dairymen in carrying out a membership campaign.

MANY STUDENTS AT VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

Attendance Figures Show a Decided Increase Over Attendance of Previous Years.

Attendance figures at present available at the vocational school show a decided increase over the totals of last year. This increase in attendance is especially noticeable among the all-day students who are taking up full courses under the direction of the continuation school.

Director Hill in announcing the figures showing the attendance says that the total day students is 85. Of this number 28 are boys and 57 are girls. The boys are divided into three classes.

One hundred and sixty students are enrolled in the part-time classes. Arrangements are made for those who find it impossible to attend throughout the day so that they may take up the work they desire. Some of the boys and girls come four hours a week and the others eight hours a week. In the afternoon department there are eighty enrolled, twenty of which come for four hours and sixty of which come for eight hours a week. In the evening department sixty boys are enrolled, half coming for eight hours a week and the other half for four hours a week. In the commercial classes there are twenty enrolled.

The class in salesmanship which is being conducted at the high school every Wednesday evening has proven a great success from the standpoint of attendance. Figures taken last evening show that one hundred and thirty-eight are enrolled in the course. This course was organized and started under the direction of Director Hill and is being held at the vocational school. The class in telegraphy which is being held at the vocational school has not as yet reached its maximum number, but it is expected that it will enter the course very soon. The class is filled. It meets each afternoon at three o'clock and is open to both men and women.

CHURCH HONORED

REV. F. F. LEWIS

Wednesday Evening Home Coming and Welcome to Pastor at Methodist Church Successful.

On Wednesday evening the members of the Carville Memorial Methodist church held a Home Coming and Welcome to Reverend F. F. Lewis, their pastor who had been away for another year's work in the church. It proved a most delightful affair. The supper was ample and deliciously prepared and served during the hour for the pastor's return. Following the report all gathered in the parlors on the second floor, which has been most tastefully decorated for the evening by Dr. T. J. Lewis and his wife and a corps of assistants. Here a varied program was given. Miss Anna Bearmore gave a piano solo. Miss Knapp and Mr. Harris a whistling duet, accompanied by Miss Bearmore. The choir, led by C. R. Bearmore rendered a vocal solo and Reverend Perry Miller made the address of welcome to Mr. Lewis and family and expressed the pleasure the members of the church had in greeting him. Edward Hooking then sang several humorous selections. Mr. Lewis then responded by expressing his gratification at being returned to the Janesville church and also outlined the work he hoped to accomplish during the coming months. The remainder of the evening was spent in games and music and proved most enjoyable.

The course of five numbers will be sold for one dollar. Ticket sales will be announced soon.

LOCAL BANKS AID IN BOOSTING THE WAR WHEAT CROP

Many bushels of Wisconsin Pedigree No. 2 winter wheat have been distributed to growers in this vicinity by the Rock County National Bank of Janesville. This is a part of the bank's co-operative plan for securing larger amounts of high yielding seed wheat with which to increase the production of this much-needed cereal.

Based on assessments of figures, Rock county harvesters will have about 1,000,000 bushels of winter wheat this year. The government asks for 4,000,000 in 1918.

Local farmers who grow the new wheat for seed this year signed an agreement with the bank which binds them to keep the seed separate from all other grains on the farm and sow or sell it for seed next year. These men must in turn agree to retain the variety in its pure state for future seedling. This process will be repeated until enough seed wheat is available for general sale in this and other states.

This wheat, developed by years of painstaking effort by the state agricultural experiment station, has state tested and on trial from four-year test, and is also popular with millers on account of its bread making qualities.

About 4,000 bushels of this variety of Wisconsin-grown wheat were distributed this fall by more than 100 banks in various parts of the state favorable to winter wheat production. In Wisconsin, in which the average wheat acreage is small, was asked by the government to increase its sowings 29 per cent. The principal increases were recommended in the areas where the acreage favored to that crop were already large and farmers are accustomed to growing wheat and have the machinery for handling and on large farms it was also advocated in places where the production of oats and corn was heavy since much wheat can be sown to advantage in standing corn, on oat stubble and on land grown in corn. Rock county has been removed for the soil or for fodder.

Winter wheat does best on rather heavy loams and clays. Good wheat crops can be raised on the well drained, heavy red clays of which there are thousands of acres in the Lake Superior region. The areas especially suited for winter wheat in Wisconsin are the counties of Adams, Ashland and Superior and by a large number of farmers throughout the wheat growing sections.

APPEAL TO KNITTERS TO CONSERVE YARN

Supply of Yarn is Rapidly Being Exhausted as Demand for Articles Increases.

The knitting department of the Red Cross work is very busy these days, as many are taking out yarn and receiving lessons on the work. Some one is at the Red Cross headquarters in the city hall on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, to give out yarn. More yarn and directions for work. Mrs. A. C. Hough states that about 125 pieces of work have been given out in her department, but more expensive yarn is needed. The Red Cross is sorely needed. She says, "Why aren't more American women knitting?" is the frantic query of Major Murphy, head of the American Red Cross, who is in the city. More women are knitting, more than they have knitted for a century in America. But many of them are knitting bright colored sweaters for the men in the army. The Red Cross is sorely needed. The yarn for Red Cross knitting is very hard to obtain and on Tuesday the supply headquarters was all exhausted. However Mrs. Hough was able to secure 30 lbs. more which she has now ready for knitters.

YESTERDAY'S MARKETS.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—New York orders for heavy hogs added to the market yesterday, as the Jewish holidays temporarily have curtailed the kosher demand, but prime 1,039-lb. Illinois yearlings to Armour at $17.65 were higher than ever before for that class.

Another feature of yesterday's cattle trade was the buying by Armour & Co. of three loads of Canadian steers for a new record of $18.50 a year ago this week range steers topped at $9.85.

This month's hog receipts will fall short of 200,000, being among the lowest on record, only a little more than half as many more than the previous September. Top yesterday at $19.35 was only surpassed three other days in local history.

Feeders continue to buy lambs at a premium over fat grades and this country demand is taking thousands away from the killers, who for that reason have been unable to force the market off sharply.

Receipts for today are estimated at 7,000 cattle, 13,000 hogs and 15,000 sheep against 7,000 cattle, 22,100 hogs and 18,437 sheep corresponding Thursday a year ago.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $18.90, against $18.70 Tuesday, $18.15 a week ago, $18.40 a year ago and $7.55 two years ago.

Cattle Market Uneven.
There was a little weakness on some of the heavy steers yesterday, but prime heavy-weight animals and yearlings sold as well as any previous time on record. Butcher classes were generally steady and bulk of calves were unchanged, although some weak grades were offered at every description sold steady to strong and many of the cows and heifers were a little higher. Quotations:

Hogs yesterday were in good demand and prices showed 10¢ to 25¢ advance, the average price and the top showing 20¢ return. Values were usually higher than Tuesday, and top at $19.35 stands only 65¢ under the prevailing record. Pigs were comparatively dull and prices showed no material change. Receipts were lighter than expected, but around 4,000 were left at the finish. Quotations:

SOLDIERS' HEALTH AT CAMP GRANT IS GUARDED CAREFULLY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Rockford, Ill., Sept. 27.—Barry's "pays" of the Eighty-sixth division and the health of the men in the training period at Camp Grant is being guarded carefully. The first two thousand selective men under the adverse weather conditions prevailing since their arrival is maintained by coming contingents. Health records for the past ten days, compiled in regimental headquarters and looked up by the division staff, show that only forty-nine one hundredths of one per cent of selective men answered "sick call" in the camp.

Medical officers, now completely organized and manning the million dollar base hospital and sanitary trains in camp, express astonishment and delight in this health record. They declare that the conditions of the troops in any division of the regular army. They point out that only one man in every two hundred reported sick in the past week. Items in the sick table include treatment of blisters, due to the first days of close order drill. Treatment of acute tonsillitis, caused by the injection of typhoid, para-typhoid and smallpox vaccine administered under the best scientific conditions to even the most susceptible men. Camp honor men first aid to incipient cases of indigestion, minor bruises, small cuts and sore muscles. Not a single case of contagious disease has been reported and single selective soldier has demanded hospital attention.

Few departments of the big training camp have been perfected. The health department, Maj. H. C. Michie, Jr., who has handled the sanitation and health work in the camp since early in July, is in command of the base hospital staff of thirty experienced physicians, many of whom have given up extensive city practices and unselfishly volunteered their services to guard the health of soldiers in the new national army, accepting army salaries which would hardly cover their office expenses at home.

Maj. Michie is an experienced army man. Since 1909 he has seen medical service in Vera Cruz, the Mexican border, Alaska and base hospitals in every section of the country. Graduates of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and the University of Virginia, he completed his medical education in Washington, Boston, Philadelphia, Vienna and London. Members of the staff include Maj. J. W. Stuss, former superintendent of the Indianapolis city hospital and medical authority of national reputation; Maj. Norval H. Hodge, prominent eye, ear, nose and throat specialist of Chicago; Capt. W. L. Baum, for twenty years president of the staff of Cook county hospital, Chicago; Capt. Ashton E. Morrill, medical inspector of Chicago and former assistant professor of medicine in Rush Medical college, University of Chicago; Capt. Egbert W. Fell, for eleven years member of the Illinois state hospital staff; Maj. Joseph A. Capps, former associate professor in Rush, and more than a score of younger physicians holding rank as first lieutenants who have left thriving practices for army work. The same type of men make up the sanitation corps under the direction of Lieut. Col. James M. Phalen, whose duty it is to make the conditions in Camp Grant and within the camp zone measure to a health standard far above that of civilian communities.

Many amusing instances featuring the jealousy with which new citizen soldiers guard their places in the division are coming to the attention of medical officers daily in their examinations and inspection. One officer attached to a rural state regiment declares he has discovered the quickest cure known for consumption. A robust recruit flatteringly appeared for final examination and after passing each test perfectly started proudly for his barracks. His face fell when the surgeon recalled him and pointed to a tuberculosis notation on his registration card. "Say, honest, I didn't know I'd like it so well here. Look how I can swell my chest!" Further tests proved that the man was without a trace of consumption and long and was drawn through the card notation while the soldier went back to his company with a burden lifted from his mind. Another enthusiast, known in Camp Grant as "the army war," because he appeared on the scene a week ahead of the first quota and demanded recognition as "first private" in the nation's new forces, has at last succeeded in breaking into the divisions. Efforts of staff officers resulted this week in securing his certification from a Chicago board and "Private" Bradley Swoler has ordered the sergeant chevrons which his persistence and proved military ability has earned him in the training camp.

Officers of the guard in camp last Sunday estimated that at least five thousand civilian visitors entered the reservation and toured the newly made roads in camp. A steady line of automobiles, four miles long, snaked in opposite directions on the main cement road leading into, crawled from and to Rockford during the afternoon and evening, and speed limit of military authorities in order to insure against road accidents. Men and officers enjoyed their second week-end holiday and Gen. Barry celebrated the occasion by routing Col. Bogey on the Rockford Country Club golf course, allowing himself one afternoon of recreation from the steady training routine which he sets for himself as well as for his boys.

TRADE COMMISSION TO ISSUE RECORDS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Washington, Sept. 27.—The federal trade commission decided today it would turn over to newspaper publishers in the agreement last March made with news print manufacturers by which paper prices were to have been cut. Some manufacturers declined to carry out the agreement, when the government refused to halt grand jury proceedings against them charging violation of the anti-trust laws. Publishers who signed the agreement have made frequent inquiries of the commission as to what are their rights in the circumstances. The commission giving no definite answer will turn over the records, and let the publishers themselves judge what they best can do.

ANIMALS EXHIBITED AT JANESVILLE WIN GRAND CHAMPIONSHIPS ELSEWHERE

Paul Calamo Korndyke and Minerva Beets, the beautiful Holstein bull and cow owned by R. B. Haeger of Algonquin, Ill., and on exhibition at the last Janesville fair, were recently shown at the New York state fair and both won grand championships for the best Holstein bull and the best Holstein cow at the fair, which was held at Syracuse, N. Y.

The Holstein show at the New York state fair is the largest of any state fair in the country, and the fact that these two animals were grand champions shows that they are the very best in the entire country, and also further shows that the claim of the management of the Janesville fair that they had some of the best animals in the country on exhibition was proven to be a fact.

EVANSVILLE MAN RETURNS AFTER YEARS IN RUSSIA

Miss Edith Albertie has just received a letter from her brother, Addis Albertie who for some years past has been living in Russia. The letter was written from Fresno, Cal., Sept. 17, and in it he says, "Will write you tonight to let you know we are back in America again. We thought Petrograd and Russia were good places to get away from. Since the revolution, Russia is no place for white people. We left Petrograd the 17th of July, came by the way of Vladivostok through Siberia by rail, from Vladivostok to Japan by steamer and from Yokohama, Japan, by large Japanese steamers to San Francisco, where we arrived August 24th. We had a very fine trip all the way, no bad storms. We were seventeen days from Yokohama to San Francisco, stopping one day in Honolulu. We are now in Fresno and will probably stay here for some time."

Mr. Addis Albertie is the second son of George Albertie, a pioneer resident of Rock County, Wisconsin. Some sixteen years ago, he went to Russia to work for a large manufacturing concern making American tools, for he is a mechanic of exceptional ability. Once during that time he had a chance to pay a short visit to his old home here. Relatives here had not heard from him for a long time, after the outbreak of the war and becoming worried, his brother Vernon Albertie, a government inspector of Post Offices in Chicago, got word to the American Consul in Russia, to look for and locate his brother

If he were still in that country. This the consul did, and that is the last news of him from that time until this letter of Monday. His mother passed away at the home of a daughter in Alabama, and was brought to Evansville for burial last April, and his brothers and sisters tried to reach him at that time, telling of her death, but without avail. In this letter just received he does not know of her demise, but sends love to all the dear ones at home.

ROCK COUNTY GIVEN LARGE ASSIGNMENTS

MILLION AND THREE QUARTERS WORTH TO BE SOLD HERE SHORTLY.

NOW UP TO THE PUBLIC

Gathering at City Hall Wednesday Afternoon. Discussed Ways and Means to Market This Second Issue.

One million, seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of the second issue of the Liberty Loan has been sold to Rock County residents during the coming crusade which will start shortly and seek to furnish the government with more money of war to fight the enemy. The campaign was brought out clearly and ways and means to market this share assigned to Rock County was discussed Wednesday afternoon at a meeting held at the assembly room of the city hall. M. G. Jeffris presided over the meeting, having been named to look after Rock County by W. L. Ross, federal reserve chairman for Wisconsin. It was attended by representatives of every bank but three in the county and a large number of citizens.

The campaign, according to Mr. Jeffris, is the campaign of everyone, and "the United States expects every man to do his duty. If the Rock County quota of the Liberty loan is not put across it will be equal to a military defeat. It is the duty of every citizen to have Rock County take its portion of the Liberty loan."

H. A. Von Oven, president of the Beloit state bank, exclaimed that everyone must buy a bond and make it the opinion of all present when he said, "All the banks are perfectly willing to make a long time loan, or give you a bond, but it is the duty of every citizen to have Rock County take its portion of the Liberty loan."

One of the points the bankers forcibly brought out was that the matter how many billions of dollars are loaned, it has no bad effect on the money market; on the contrary it creates greater credit, the money remains in the country and it is given a wider circulation.

"The past shows that loans have hurt no one, and all records show that bank loans have increased in all countries were huge loans have been floated," said Mr. Jeffris.

"Every farmer, every one in the city—every man, woman and child—must take this loan and make it a success, a big success, and boost the Liberty loan all possible ways, so that every man can be proud to come from Rock County," said Mr. Jeffris.

O. P. Gardner, president of the Rock County state bank, estimated that there are about 3,200 farms in Rock County, and each one of these farmers ought to have a fifty dollar bond, though more is expected from quite a few. A special effort will be made all over the county to have the farmers make a large part of this loan. This is because in the last Liberty loan the farmers made the poorest showing.

Mr. Von Oven remarked: "The last Liberty loan was absorbed by the citizens where everyone, even the day laborers, bought bonds, if not big, at least a $50 bond, on the installment plan."

Work which the banks are doing was also discussed by Mr. Von Oven, who, commenting on the work, said in part: "The Continental Savings and Trust company of Chicago, has turned its whole bank, its whole organization over to making the Liberty loan a success, and all this is done gratuitously."

The Liberty bonds in Rock County will be loaned to the banks here, besides their work. Mr. Jeffris has given a whole month of his time and all of the other bankers are doing everything possible to make this Liberty loan a success in Rock County. They have appropriated $200 to meet the necessary expenses."

The banks represented were: Beloit Savings bank, Beloit State Bank, H. A. Von Oven, president, R. E. Meech, cashier; the R. C. Hyde and Britton bank, R. K. Lockwell, president; Second National bank, J. G. Rector, president; State Bank of Clinton, A. Tiltonson, cashier; C. J. Smith, cashier; First National bank of Edgerton, Oscar Olsen, cashier; Tobacco Exchange bank, William J. Baker, cashier; Farmers and Merchants' bank of Evansville, H. O. Meyers, president, R. D. Hartley, George State bank of Evansville, L. B. Bager, cashier; Bower City State bank, O. P. Gardner, president; First National bank of Janesville, J. G. Rector, president, H. S. Haggart, cashier; J. Harris, George Rummel and W. L. Garle, directors; Merchants and Savings bank, S. M. Smith, cashier, M. G. Jeffris, director; Rock County National bank of Janesville, F. H. Jackson, president; M. Beeler, cashier; Rock County Savings and Trust company, W. E. Hyzer, secretary; Farmers' bank of Milton Junction, V. A. Paul, president; State Bank of Milton, J. A. Galt, cashier; Gates and Farmers' and Merchants' bank of Orfordville, O. P. Gardner, president; C. Clemetson, director; and a delegation of Evansville citizens, including J. A. Baker, A. S. Beath, R. M. Richmond, Rev. William McDermott, Marc Webb, A. C. Holmes and Forrest Durner.

Every bank in the county was represented excepting the Citizens' bank of Clinton, Footville State bank of Footville, and the State bank of Milton.

HELP OUR SOLDIERS BY GIVING TO THE ARMY LIBRARY FUND

Five Hundred Dollars Must be Raised in Janesville as Its Part of a Million Dollar Fund.

Five hundred dollars must be raised in Janesville as its share of the one million dollar fund which is being raised throughout the country to provide libraries for the soldiers. The campaign is being conducted in a quiet way with no indication that it is not successful; careful organization of the entire state and of each city and town is being made. The Milwaukee public library, who had been appointed as state manager by the government.

In this city, Miss Elizabeth Egan, librarian at the Carnegie library, has charge of the soliciting of funds and will accept all donations, large and small. Everyone is urged to contribute something to this fund; it is a thing that is as essential as the work of the Y. M. C. A., whose activity in the camps and trenches has been recognized by all governments as one of the big things in the life of the fighters. These agencies are unable, with their multitude of activities, to conduct libraries of any size for the men, and it is the duty of the men that the campaign hopes to fill with the money raised in the present campaign.

There are hours upon hours in the life of the men which are not filled with the work of the government, hours when the men seek relaxation and when one of their greatest desires is for a good book or magazine and a quiet place to read.

The million dollar fund will be administered in the erection of small libraries at each of the big training camps, each of the spare hours of the men. The money is needed now for the maintenance of the libraries and the administration of the system.

The campaign not only has the hearty approval of the government, but is being conducted by a commission appointed by them in cooperation with the National Library association. A few days in the past, a talk with any army man, anyone who lives the life of the camp and who knows the joy of a book or magazine to fill in the spare hours, will tell you that the libraries may be put in operation before the winter sets in.

Everyone is urged to do his bit, be it large or small. Personal solicitation is impossible, but any of the librarians will accept contributions to the fund. Give now. Help the soldiers.

Contributions may be taken either to the library or to the Gazette office where additional information can be given regarding the campaign. All money received at this office will be turned over to Mrs. Egan and placed with the general fund.

People outside of the city are especially urged to aid in the campaign. If you have relatives or friends serving in some branch of the service and by contributing to the fund they are giving an opportunity of helping those at the front.

THREE SHILLINGS SCRIPT ISSUED BY NEW JERSEY COLONY

Interesting Relic of the Colonial Days Brought to Janesville Shows How Money Was Made.

John Watson, who is employed as chef at the MacDonald restaurant, has an interesting relic of colonial days in the form of a three shilling script, issued March 25, 1776, by the province of New Jersey. It is a faded bit of paper and on one side has a picture of what might be a tobacco leaf and the words, "The counterfeits, this is death" and also the announcement that it was printed at Burlington, New Jersey, by Isaac Collins in 1776. The other side of the script, taken up by the announcement that it is of the fourth year of the reign of his majesty King George the third, and dated March 25, 1776. When this script was issued the thirteen colonies were fighting for their independence, although the famous Declaration of Independence had not yet been issued.

New Jersey had many so-called loyal citizens who doubtless accepted this script as good money and in fact it was all they had except for the English coins, a few Spanish and some French, that found their way into the colonies from the West Indies trade in which many of the American owned vessels were engaged.

SIX APPEAR BEFORE JUDGE THIS MORNING

Judge Maxfield Has a Busy Day in Municipal Court—Blanton Enters Plea of Not Guilty.

Three men charged with drunkenness were brought before Judge Maxfield in the municipal court this morning. Two of the men were from the court for the first time. The first was the first man charged with the charge and after he made several attempts to explain how he would have himself if sentence was suspended, the judge decided to put him in the hands of the sheriff. He was given ten days flat and $25 and costs or ninety days additional.

Charles Williams appeared before the court for the first time in his life on a charge of drunkenness and was given a light sentence. He was fined $5 and costs or seven days in the county jail.

Edward Gettleston, a native of Stoughton, was on his way to Beloit and decided to stop in Janesville for a short visit. He made his visit too long evidently, because he was arrested on a charge of drunkenness. This was also his first appearance in court and consequently he was handed a fine of $10 and costs or fifteen days. He was in a hurry to get back to Stoughton to see his wife, so he paid the fine.

Clarence Blanton, the man arrested on the charge of attacking six-year-old Jennie Enlow last week while she was on her way to school, changed his plea this morning. When he was arrested and brought into court before he was examined, he pleaded guilty. This morning, however, when he was read the information on his arrest, he changed his plea to not guilty. He was held over until October 4 under $10,000 bail.

George Osterman and Edward Griffin had their sentences postponed until the court for the first time. He pleaded guilty Monday morning to breaking his parole while at work under the commitment law of the county. The cases were postponed to give the judge more time to investigate the situation.

MYERS THEATRE.
"Robinson Crusoe, Jr.," is described as an original musical extravaganza in two acts and ten scenes. The book by Edgar Smith and Harold Atteridge, the latter author being responsible for the lyrics as well. The music is by Sigmond Romberg and James Hanley. J. C. Hoffman staged the production, while the musical numbers are the work of Allan K. Foster. Little of the theme of story book fame has been utilized, although many characters from the story appear in the play, such as Crusoe, himself, his man Friday and the cannibals. The Crusoe idea is introduced by means of a dream, which falls to Hiram Westbury, a millionaire who has a wonderful estate at Westbury, Long Island. He craves experiences which his wealth cannot bring him, one of them being a desire to live the life of Robinson Crusoe. When his dream comes true, the audience is treated to scenes which are really faithful reproductions of a Pacific island. But further than this our modern Winter Garden Robinson Crusoe is quite in keeping with the traditions of this famous theatre, which means pretty girls by the score, odd dances, ballets, fanciful diversions, catchy tunes, "the last" word in stage costumes, funny scenes and—Al. Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: The other night a gentleman friend of mine called me on the telephone and asked me to meet him downtown so we could go to a picture show. I went down, but when I got there he wasn't there. I waited for him for an hour, but he didn't come. I went home and when I got there I found a letter from him. It was a love letter, and it was very nice. I was very happy to receive it. I am a girl sixteen years of age. There is a new boy in school this year in the same class with me and I have had to pass him in the halls very close several times. Every time we pass he reaches out and squeezes my hand. I am very upset in my views and do not like to do anything that is not right, but I don't think we are doing wrong. What do you think about it, should I let him or not? I have always been quite friendly with does not speak to me this year at school. I don't know what I have done to make her act that way unless it is because we both used to go with the same boy and now he goes with me and not her. What would you do about it? Go up to talk to her or ignore her just as if I didn't know her? I don't like to lose this friend.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL.

(1) There isn't anything very wrong in what you have been doing because you are both children, but I don't think it might lead to worse things, and you are at an age now when you are building your character, so you ought to be very careful. I am sure you will probably meet lots of boys from now on and they may be among those you will have occasion to go with.

(2) One of my girl friends has been going up to this girl and telling her that you think maybe something has come between you and you would like to make matters right. Tell her that you have noticed that she does not speak to you any more and if there is something you have done that she feels hurt about, to tell you and you will try to do better. If she is just jealous because you are going with the boy who used to go with both of you, she will get over it. Surely if you ignore her it won't correct the wrong, whatever it may be.

SIDE TALKS

Behind The Back Praise.
A group of married women were comparing their husband's faults. One would think to listen to them that those husbands were all compounded of faults. Not big faults, you know, but little faults. The sort a wife can complain of without wifely treason or without loss of standing. His faults, like untidiness, or drunkenness or dishonesty, a wife usually hides, from pride. Little faults she loves to talk about with other members of the society.

Some Faults of Husbands.
One husband was terribly disorderly, never put anything back where he found it.

Another was impatient with the children, never wanted to play with them or talk with them.

Two were court-martialed for being late to meals.

And then one of the women agreed with another one about some fault the latter had ascribed to her husband, selfishness, I believe it was.

One often hears the person who is so fault-lavish and praise stingy in their presence praise them to others when occasion rises.

Why Keep All Praise for Other Ears?
One often hears the person who is so fault-lavish and praise stingy in their presence praise them to others when occasion rises.

True, that is not a straightforward thing to do.

But at least do you hear the nice things and perhaps he is as sincere in praise as in blame.

When a person keeps all his praise of you for other people you never have the gratification of hearing it. Somehow it is difficult for housewives to say pretty things to each other. I don't know why it is harder to phrase a compliment to an intimate than to a comparative stranger but this One feels oddly shamefaced about them.

Like all good habits (and bad ones) this one becomes second nature before you know it and the compliments that once stuck in your throat soon slide out as easily as fault finding.

It is reasonable in price. It is certain in results. It stops bake-day failures. It is by far the most economical baking powder you can buy or use. Sold under a guarantee of Money-Back-If-You-Are-Not-Satisfied.

EASY LESSONS IN FRENCH

FOR THE SOLDIER BOYS WHO GO TO FRANCE.

This short series of easy lessons in French will interest not only the soldiers but others who wish to secure the rudiments of the language at this time.

Lesson No. 12.
FRENCH SOLDIERS' SLANG.

WITH a command of French as it is found in the books a person has no difficulty in making himself understood in France. But comprehending the language of the army is quite another matter, since the great war has produced a stock of slang terms in inexhaustible variety. It is possible in a limited space to give only very few of these, of course.

In this lesson the French is given first, then the pronunciation, then the meaning:

Aguille à tricoter—eye-greasy as tree-to-leh—bayonet (literally, knitting needle).

Becane—beck-ahn—bicycle.

Becquette—beck-tah—food.

Bibi—bee-bee—private soldier.

Bidochue—bee-doo—surgical table.

Billard—bee-yar—surgical table.

Blou-blou (n as in but)—a recruit (literally, blue).

Bonhomme—bun-um—French soldiers' name for themselves.

Bouchers noirs—boo-cher nwar—artillerymen (literally, black butchers).

Bouffarde—boo-fard—pipe.

Bourrin—boor-ran—horse.

Boyaux—bwa-yoh—communication trenches.

Camouflage—kab-moo-fahj—disguising of guns, buildings, bodies of troops, etc., to make them blend into surrounding things, in order to deceive the enemy.

Charlotte—shar-lut—75 millimeter gun.

Chibiche—chib-euch—cigarette.

Chocolat—chuck-lah—colored soldier.

Corbeau—ker-boh—priest (literally, raven).

Cure-dents—kür-don—bayonet (literally, toothpick).

Ferme—fair-may—shut up!

Piflot—fee-lob—private soldier.

Fourchette—foor-shet—bayonet (literally, fork).

Gosse—gus—young or youngest soldier.

Gourbi—goor-bee—shelter in trench.

Marmite—mar-meet—a huge shell.

Mugline à coudre, moulin à café, moulins à poivre—mah-shen ah coodre, moolan ah kah-fay, ah pwavi—machine gun (literally, sewing machine, coffee mill, pepper mill).

Molneau—mwah-noh—bombshell (literally, sparrow).

Officier—ut-us-mahr—officer.

Paf—pahf—drunk.

Perlot—pah-lob—tobacco.

Pote or poteau—poh, poh-toh—comrade.

Truc—prij-aoh—bullet (literally, prun).

Rosette—affectionate name for bayonet.

HEALTH TALKS

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Acute Indigestion

Twenty years ago what the most noted specialists didn't know about indigestion, now folks libraries and saves thousands of lives. But several years was a long time to have ACUTE stomach trouble, wasn't it? When a man's acute indigestion is as long as a year he had better be honest with himself and call it chronic. And even noted specialists have a bad habit of giving up to die when their time comes like all the rest of humanity.

Acute indigestion has a shudder about it, because newspaper reporters have to accept what noted specialists are willing to test them about the illness and demise of the great and near-great, and a patient's private ailments are none of the public's business, so acute indigestion goes into the paper when it is fact, angina pectoris, appendix, pancreatitis, and numerous other troubles of serious or fatal type are concealed. Best assured, you whose food disagrees, that indigestion is never really fatal. At any rate, the health authorities will not accept a death certificate with acute indigestion entered as the cause of death. They demand a statement of the actual facts.

As we have repeatedly stated, when any digestive disturbance becomes severe enough to require medical relief, then it is certainly not due to the failure of food to digest, or to the food "disagreeing," that means. The "indigestion" idea belongs to the delusion of "bilious attack." The victim of overeating and insufficient exercise, and of indigestion, is a common case. If yellow or greenish bile is ejected in the course of such a rebellion, he KNOWS it is biliousness, at the truth is that "indigestion" is not a disease, but the bile ducts are not obstructed, the act of vomiting is sure to bring up some bile if repeated a few times, if not at the first effort. Therefore the elastic. Let rise in a temperature of about 105 degrees Fahrenheit, and a shelf over the stove is not a suitable place. When doubled in bulk shape into two loaves. When again light bake about one hour. To mix in the morning use one whole yeast cake.

USING OLD PAPER

When peeling potatoes, apples, peaches, etc., spread a paper on the table and drop the peeling on it, and when through, gather paper containing the refuse and consign to the flames or garbage can.

When cleaning fish, place it on heavy brown paper. This holds all refuse. Chickens can be cleaned in like manner. Use a piece of white wrapping paper for frying chickens, and for fish for frying. In making pies, cookies and biscuit use smooth white paper to roll the dough out on, instead of a kneading board. This is more satisfactory and you will have no sticky mess to clean, which saves time and labor.

Place the baby's high chair on a newspaper at meal time to catch the crumbs and for baby drops, thus saving the rug from being soiled, and the paper and waste can be rolled up together in a moment. Feed the dog his meals on a paper; it saves the floor from greasy spots.

Use paper to wipe off the top of the stove after cooking each meal.

LAUNDERING LACE CURTAINS

When laundering lace curtains fold them lengthways and starch the edges only. In this way you not only economize on starch but the curtains look better, hang better, and do not work into holes as quickly as when starched all over.

TO CLEANSE BRUSHES

To clean brushes use one table-spoon bread soda to one quart boiling water. Plunge the bristle part up and down in the water, holding by the handle, then wipe with bristles. Rinse in clear water, wipe again and dry (bristles downward, resting on soft cloth or paper) in a sunny window.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

(Miss Hoyt writes answer in this paper all questions or matters of etiquette addressed here in care of the Gazette. If a personal answer is desired enclose a two-cent stamp.)

In carving a chicken, first cut off the wings. This is easily done by leaning where to strike the joint. Then slice the breast, and cut off the merry-thought and side bones. The breast should always be helped first, then the wings, the liver with bones, the heart of the two. It is better always to reserve a small piece of the white meat to serve with the dark.

MRS. S.: Salad is usually served in a course by itself, and is eaten after the meat course, and before the dessert. Wafers or thin bread and butter sandwiches are passed with it. Dinner napkins are large, and are folded into a square, and are much smaller and are folded in oblong shape. When a minister is a guest at your table, he should be requested to ask a blessing.

TOY: When for any reason you are obliged to leave a dance before the numbers for which you have engaged partners have been finished, you should go to each lady named in your program and tell her that you must go, express regret, and ask her to excuse you. When asking a lady for a dance you may say, "May I have the pleasure of the next dance with you?"

Jack Tells Uncle Bertram of an Army That Has Been Organized Back Home

"Dear Uncle Bertram: I think you will be interested in our army. I am the captain when we drill, and my team is used for headquarters. I made a large poster with colored letters. It reads: 'Men Wanted for the Army. Your Country Needs You. Don't Be a Slacker.'"

"I had a flag out in front of the tent, and I wore my uniform. Mother sewed some stripes on my khaki suit, and I used my corduroy leggings. They were almost the right color."

"Most of the boys in the neighborhood enlisted, but some of the little ones did not like so much drilling, so I told them they could claim exemptions if they had any dependents. One little six-year-old said he had a dog dependent on him for his bones. 'My mother does not like the dog very well,' he added, 'and if I do not feed it, it goes hungry.' I allowed his claim."

"Another boy nine years old got out of service because he had a pair of rabbits to take care of. I told him that if he would raise rabbits for market he would be serving his country as well as if he joined the army, for the food question is very important, and meat is getting scarce. He is to report every time he has young rabbits. We have a food commission, too, you see, just like the real army."

"Every time I get a letter from you I read it to the boys, so if you will put in messages for the soldiers in my army I will be much obliged. I take your letters to school, too, and our teacher reads them to the children. She is very much interested in the war and helps to keep the Godfather club up to snuff."

"When snow comes the army is going into action. There is another company of boys two or three streets away from our house, and we plan to challenge them to a battle. We will make a snow fort and a lot of ammunition. When talking it over I said, 'We will not put any stones in the snowballs,' and the boys said I should say not. We are not Germans."

"I shall give the other company the choice of defending the fort or attacking it. We will play fair and if anybody is knocked down or has the nose bleed or anything like that he is to be sent to the hospital and be out of the game. The exempted boys have promised to make ammunition and help lead the wounded to the hospital. If the party that is in the fort is driven out the attacking party wins. If the balance be driven out the party in the fort wins; time, one hour. I will tell you how it comes out. Maybe you can give me some pointers on tactics. That is a very important part of war, and I do not know so much about it as I do about the drilling. You see I have a drill book to consult, but there is no such book on tactics. I am writing only so you will have time to think the thing out.

CHAPTER XXI.

Toward nine o'clock on the following morning John rose from a fitful sleep and looked around him. Even before he could recall the events of the preceding night he felt that there was a weight pressing upon his brain, a miserable sense of emptiness in life, a dull feeling of bewilderment. Although he had no clear recollection of getting there, he realized that he was in his own sitting-room, and that he had been asleep upon the couch. He saw, too, that it was morning, for a ray of sunlight lay across the carpet.

As he struggled to his feet, he saw with a little shock that he was not alone. Sophy Gerard was curled up in his easy chair, still in evening clothes, her cloak drawn closely around her, as if she were cold. Her head had fallen back. She, too, was asleep. At the sound of his movement, however, she opened her eyes and looked at him for a moment with a puzzled stare. Then she jumped to her feet.

"Why, we have both been asleep," she murmured, a little weakly. At the sound of her voice it all came back to him, a tangled, hideous nightmare. He sat down again upon the couch and held his head between his hands.

"I remember everything that happened at the club," he went on slowly. "Is the prince dead?"

She shook her head.

"Of course not! He was hurt, though, and there was a terrible scene

Remember," She Whispered, "You Have to Go to See Louise."

of confusion in the room. The people crowded around him, and I managed, somehow, to drag you away. The manager helped us. To tell the truth, he was only too anxious for you to get away before the police arrived. He was so afraid of anything getting into the papers. I drove you back here, and, as you still seemed stunned, I brought you upstairs. I didn't mean to stay, but I couldn't get you to say a single coherent word. I was afraid to leave you alone."

"I suppose I was drunk," he said, in a dull tone. "I remember filling my glass over and over again. There is one thing, though," he added, his voice gaining a sudden strength; "I was not drunk when I struck the prince! I remember those few seconds very distinctly. I saw everything, knew everything, felt everything. If no one had interfered, I think, I should have killed him!"

"You were not drunk at all," she declared, with a little shiver, "but you were in a state of terrible excitement. It was a long time before I could get you to lie down, and then you wouldn't close your eyes until I came and sat by your side. I watched you go to sleep. I hope you are not angry with me! I didn't like to go and leave you."

"How could I be angry?" he protested. "You are far kinder to me than I deserve. I expect I should have been in a police cell but for you!"

"And now," she begged, coming over to him and speaking in a more matter-of-fact tone, "do let us be practical. I must run away, and you must go and have a bath and change your clothes. Don't be afraid of your reputation. I can get out by the other entrance."

"Remember," she whispered, "you have to go to see Louise!"

He covered his face with his hands. "What's the use of it?" he groaned. "It's only another turn of the screw!"

"Don't be foolish, John," she admonished briskly. "You don't actually know anything yet—nothing at all; at least, you are not sure of anything. And besides, you strange, impossible person," she went on, patting his hand, "don't you see that you must judge her, not by the standards of your world, in which she has never lived, but by the standards of her world, in which she was born and bred? That is only fair, isn't it?"

He rose listlessly to his feet. There was a strange, dull look in his face. "You are a dear girl, Sophy," he said. "Don't go just yet. I have never felt like it before in my life, but just now I don't want to be left alone. Send a boy for some clothes, and I will order some tea."

She hesitated.

"My own reputation," she murmured, "is absolutely of no consequence, but remember that you live here, and—"

"Don't be silly!" he interrupted. "What does that matter? And besides, according to you and all the rest of you here, these things don't affect a man's reputation—they are expected of him. See, I have rung the bell for breakfast. Now I am going to telephone down for a messenger boy to go for your clothes."

They breakfasted together, a little later, and she made him smoke. He stood before the window, looking down upon the river, with his pipe in his mouth and an unfamiliar look upon his face.

"Do you suppose that Louise knows anything?" he asked at length.

"I should think not," she replied. "It is for you to tell her. I rang up the prince's house while you were in the bathroom. They say that he has a broken rib and some bad cuts, sustained in a motor accident last night, but that he is in no danger. There was nothing about the affair in the newspapers, and the prince's servants have evidently been instructed to give this account to inquirers."

A gleam of interest shone in John's face.

"By the bye," he remarked, "the prince is a Frenchman. He will very likely expect me to fight with him."

"No hope of that, my belligerent friend," Sophy declared, with an attempt at a smile. "The prince knows that he is in England. He would not be guilty of such an anachronism. Besides, he is a person of wonderfully well-balanced mind. When he is himself again, he will realize that what happened to him is exactly what he asked for."

John took up his hat and gloves. He glanced at the clock—it was a little past eleven.

"I am ready," he announced. "Let me drive you home first."

His motor was waiting at the door, and he left Sophy at her rooms. Before she got out, she held his arm for a moment.

"John," she said, "remember that Louise is very high-strung and very sensitive. Be careful!"

"There is only one thing to do or to say," he answered. "There is only one way in which I can do it."

He drove the car down Piccadilly like a man in a dream, steering as carefully as usual through the traffic, and glancing every now and then with unseeing eyes at the streams of people upon the pavements. Finally he came to a standstill before Louise's house and stopped the engine, with deliberate care. Then he rang the bell, and was shown into her little drawing-room, which seemed to have become a perfect bower of pink and white lilac.

"Perhaps," he replied, "Listen. When I left you last night, I went to the club in Adelphi Terrace. There was a well-known critic there, comparing you and Latrobe. On the whole he favored you, but he gave Latrobe the first place in certain parts. Latrobe, he said, had had more experience in life. She had had a dozen lovers—you, only one!"

She winced. The glad freshness seemed suddenly to fade from her face. Her eyes became strained.

"Well?"

"I found Grailot. I cornered him. I asked him for the truth about you. He put me off with an evasion. I came down here and looked at your window. It was three o'clock in the morning. I dared not come in. A very lemon of unrest was in my blood. I stopped at the night club on my way back. Sophy was there. I asked her plainly to put me out of my agony. She was like Grailot. She fenced with me. And then—the prince came!"

"The prince was there?" she faltered.

"He came up to the table where Sophy and I were sitting. I think I was half mad. I poured him a glass of wine. I told him that you had promised to become my wife. He raised his glass—I can see him now. He told me, with a smile, that it was the anniversary of the day on which you promised to become his—"

Louise shrank back.

"He told you that?"

John was on his feet. The fever was blazing once more.

"He told me that, face to face!"

"And you?"

"If we had been alone," John answered simply, "I should have killed him. I drove the words down his throat. I threw him back to the place he had left, and hurt him rather badly. I'm afraid. Sophy took me home somehow, and now I am here."

She leaned a little forward on the couch. She looked into his face searchingly, anxiously as if looking for something she could not find. His lips were set in hard, cold lines. The likeness to Stephen had never been more apparent.

"Listen!" she said. "You are a Puritan. While I admire the splendid self-restraint evolved from your creed, it is partly temperamental, isn't it? I was brought up to see things differently, and I do see them differently. Tell me, do you love me?"

"Love you?" he repeated. "You know it! Could I suffer the tortures of the damned if I didn't? Could I come to you with a man's blood upon my hands if I didn't? If the prince lives, it is simply the accident of fate. I tell you that if we had been alone I should have driven the breath out of his body. Love you!"

He rose slowly to her feet. She leaned with her elbow upon the mantelpiece, and her face was hidden for a moment.

"Let me think!" she said. "I don't know what to say to you. I don't know you, John. There isn't anything left of the John I loved. Let me look again!"

She swung around.

"You speak of love," she went on suddenly. "Do you know what it is? Do you know that love reaches to the heavens, and can also touch the nethermost depths of hell? If I throw myself on your knees before you now, if I link my fingers around your neck, if I whisper to you that in the days that were past before you came I had done things I would fain forget, if I told you that from henceforth every second of my life was yours, that my heart beat with yours by day and by night, that I had no other thought, no other dream, than to stay by your side, to see you happy, to give all there was of myself into your keeping, to keep it holy and sacred for you—John, what then?"

"Never a line in his face softened. He looked at her a moment as he had looked at the woman in Piccadilly, into whose hand he had dropped gold."

"Are you going to tell me that it is the truth?" he asked hoarsely.

"Think for a single moment of that feeling which you call love, John!" she pleaded. "Listen! I love you. It has come to me at last, after all these years. It lives in my heart, a greater thing than my success, a greater thing than life itself. I love you, John! Can't you feel, don't you know, that nothing else in life can matter?"

Not a line in his face softened. His teeth had come together. He was like a man upon the rack.

"It is true? It is true, then?" he demanded.

She looked at him without any reply. The seconds seemed drawn out to an interminable period. He heard the rolling of the motorbuses in the street. Once more the perfume of the lilac seemed to choke him. Then she leaned back and touched the bell.

"The prince spoke the truth," she said. "I think you had better go!"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Dinner Stories

Brown had come home very late one night after a convivial evening at a smoker, and had consumed more cigars and refreshments than were good for him. It was midnight when Brown reached home, but he did not know it.

"Ah," he muttered, "if the church clock would only strike I should know the time. It's too dark to see."

But hark! Just as he spoke the clock began to strike. Breathlessly Brown counted: "One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve!"

But at that moment another clock began.

"Thirteen," counted Brown, "fourteen, fifteen (great Scott!), sixteen, seventeen, eighteen (Gracious!), nineteen, twenty (Gee!), twenty-one, twenty-two (H!), twenty-three (Mercy on us!), twenty-four (H!)."

Mopping his streaming brow, he exclaimed: "My word, I've never been out so late in my life!"

It was a "knife and fork do" at the county fair and the catering had been done in the good old-fashioned way. The board groaned beneath the weight of good things. The champion eaters of the town sat together, and one of them began to eat slice after slice of meat with great gusto. His friend watched him a moment then, glancing round at the array of sweets, burst out:

"Good heavens, man! Surely you're not going to throw away that beautiful appetite upon a leg of mutton!"

"So," said the visitor, "you intend to become a physician when you grow up."

"Yes, sir," said the youth. "And why have you decided upon the medical profession?"

"Well, a doctor seems to be the only man that keeps on getting paid whether his work is satisfactory or not."

Washing Won't Rid Head Of Dandruff?

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM HAS FAIR OUTLOOK

Hard Work Is In Store For The Football Men During The Next Two Weeks.

Rain Wednesday afternoon prevented the regular practice of the high school football team which was to have been held at the Fourth ward park. Coach Phillips did not welcome the postponement of the practice because he feels that the men need plenty of drilling before they will be ready to meet their opponents.

With the appeal for students to come out to try for the team last week the squad has increased very materially. About twenty-five thirty are now reporting each afternoon for the practice. The squad however from a school the size of the high school should be near the fifty mark. There is plenty of material in the school if they can be induced to come out for a trial. Several of the men who started work during the past two or three days with the squad are showing up well and should make a place on the team.

Monday evening a tentative first and second team was formed and plays executed without signals. As a climax to the week for the afternoon a thirty minute scrimmage was held. Both teams showed good form on the offense but were very weak on the defense. The defense will be strengthened by the coaches as soon as the line men are chosen.

There are plenty of heavy men to fill in at the guard and tackle positions providing they can show the ability that is necessary. Some of the men have had experience on last year's team but from the showing of a few of the new men they will have to fight hard to hold their places. In the backfield the number of candidates is low but the material is of high caliber providing scholastic difficulties do not interfere.

Linebackers and guards are trying for the center position and a hot fight is in progress for the honor. Dugan is much lighter than Garvin but is an accurate passer. Garvin has a weight and the strength of an excellent center position if he is not used at a guard or tackle.

Captain Davidson is a fixture at left end. He is a fast, ready player and the best tackler on the squad. Kimball is making a bid for the berth on the other end of the line. Hall has been used at quarterback on the squad team up to the present time but may be placed on one of the ends to play with Davidson.

In finding men to fill the guard and tackle positions Coach Phillips is finding plenty of material. He has plenty of men with about the same ability and experience. Lane and Kwing are big men and have had some experience in the work. Both are trying for the line positions. Finley, Black, Seidmore and Banta are likely candidates and are making good in their places.

Nuzum seems to have the call on the quarterback at the present time. Although he is light, he can handle the ball well and is fast on his feet. Hunt is a figure at fullback and one of the hardest running fullbacks on the team. He has had experience and will be a valuable asset to the team. Powers and Homan have been playing at the halves during the remainder of the week. The work will consist of giving the men their stands for the plays which are being developed. Scrimmages will be in order for a few days until the men are fixed up and used to tackling. At the present time the men get hard and used to tackling. At the present time the men are in a fair condition but need some hard work in order to put on the finishing touches for the coming games.

The schedule of games for the team has not been decided upon but it is assumed that the team will play at Beloit and Edgemoor in addition to Delavan, an other nearby teams. The dates with Beloit and Edgemoor will be closed within the next few days and the two teams will be built around these two teams. The first game will be played undoubtedly on October 6th.

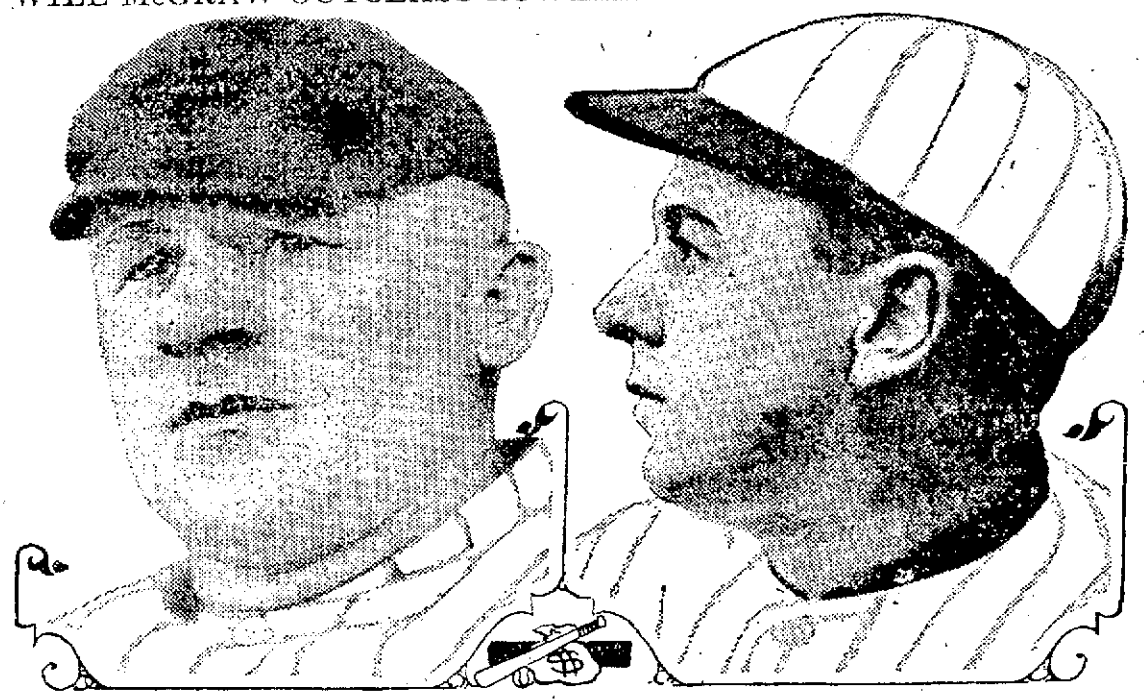

NO BRAINS, NO BRAINS!

SILLYSONNETS

WILL MCGRAW OUTCLASS ROWLAND IN BASEBALL STRATEGY?

John J. McGraw (left) and Clarence Rowland.

So much depends on the managers in a short series between well matched teams that the outcome of the world's series may be very largely credited to the strategy and leadership of McGraw, as the case may be. Advance dope on the point often is reasonably accurate, but baseball is full of surprises. All the speculating at present favors McGraw, as he is celebrated as a brainy leader and versed in the strategy of the game. Rowland is something of an unknown quantity. He has shown judgment and ability in leading the White Sox to a pennant, but he is new in fast company and in many ways is inexperienced in major league baseball. However, he will be supported and perhaps aided by Charley Comiskey, the White Sox owner and one of the best heads in the game.

CREIGHTON TO PLAY DUBUQUE THIS FALL

Omaha, Sept. 27.—"Tommy" Mills, coach for the Creighton football team, has arranged the most pretentious schedule for this season. The Creighton team has never faced, but he is not optimistic concerning the showing his team will make. Most of his players are new men, only Charles Payne, Morgan, captain-elect, Charles Payne and Gene Lancy, and possibly Carl Lutes, of last year's team, being in the list. Lutes has enlisted in the army but may not be called into service before the end of the football season.

Of last year's team, St. Kamanski, center, is now at Dealing with the Fourth Nebraska machine gun company. Last year he won a letterman, and Sam Connor is in the military service.

There is a possibility that "Chuck" Morearty, formerly left end for the Omaha high school team and all-around athlete star, will enter Creighton this term, in which case he will certainly be in the football line-up. Last year he won a scholarship in the Catholic university at Washington, but it is not certain that he will take advantage of it.

Preliminary practice has already been begun. The schedule is as follows:

Sept. 9—Cotner at Omaha.
Oct. 6—Perry Normal at Omaha.
Oct. 12—Drake university at Omaha.
Oct. 20—South Dakota at Omaha.
Oct. 27—Dubuque at Omaha.
Nov. 3—Nebraska Wesleyan at Omaha.
Nov. 17—Nebraska Indians at Omaha.
Nov. 29—Wyoming at Omaha.

CARDINALS PREPARE FOR BELOIT SERIES

Manager Langdon Has Secured Good Team for Games on Friday and Saturday at Beloit.

Now that the series with the Beloit Fairies is an assured fact, the Cardinals are now looking forward to the personnel of the Janesville team. The fans believe that with the right team Beloit can be beaten in a short series. In spite of the fact that the Fairies have a team which has played together all season and have made an excellent record.

Manager Langdon has been fortunate in securing the services of several Central league players as they have completed their playing season. These men, in addition to Ryan and Eberts, members of the Cardinals throughout the present season, will compose a team which will make Beloit hustle to win the series.

If Janesville can win in the first two games of the series, it will mean that they will win the series. It has been decided to play until one team wins three games and then call it enough. With this in mind the team which gets the jump and wins the first two games is practically certain of a win in the series. In order to win the first two games Manager Langdon has secured the services of two pitchers who should be able to cop the honors if given the right kind of support by the team.

Schoup, who will be on the mound in the first game on Saturday, has already beaten the Fairies once before. He was on the mound for the Central League All-Stars two or three weeks ago and held the Beloit players to a few scattered hits while his teammates pounded out a victory.

For the second game Scheneberg of Columbus has been secured to do the twirling. He is also a pitcher of no small ability and should be able to carry his work and secure a victory.

and Will has gotten into the habit of believing that he never will have any breaks as long as he remains on Main Island. It is not his fault nor the players' fault particularly, just bad luck of baseball.

Fred Toney and Hal Chase of the Reds were commenting a few days ago on the vagaries of the official scorers, the strange difference in the appearance of field plays, according to where the scorer perches. For instance, Toney was given an error a few days ago, on a ball he was supposed to have muffed when covering first base. He never got near that ball, the chuck was so wide, but from the scoring roosts it looked as though it was right in easy reach. Again when there was a hostile runner on third base, an outfield throw came whizzing into a group of Reds, assembled to protect the plate. The ball leaped over the flock and rolled away, while the runner scored. Officially an error was given to Chase, who had nothing to do with the matter.

Miss Evelyn Ross of Los Angeles is said to be the greatest girl backstroke swimmer in the world. She has double-jointed arms and shoulders, and when in action her hands appear as paddle wheels. This permits her to make a clean "catch" at the most effective angle in back of her head and to follow up with a strong sweep for the pull. In addition to being the fastest backstroke swimmer on the Pacific coast, Miss Ross is a clever diver. She is one of the coming champions in aquatics.

Sport Snap Shots

Leo Dressen will be tried out by the Detroit Tigers on first base. Leo has a fair chance of keeping the job next year. George Burns will soon go to war and somebody must look after first. Leo looks like a likely sort. Frank Navin must think so for stories coming from St. Paul say that the Detroit owner paid $7,000 for the player. Dressen is a 360 hitter and besides that he led the American Association in base stealing.

There is a firm conviction in Detroit among Bill Donovan's closest friends that William will not be manager of the New York Yankees next season. It is said that William himself has no thought of being re-elected to the managerial role. Willie has played in tough luck ever since taking up the New York job. Things have broken the wrong way at all times.
